

Important Note: This story was originally published in the anthology Spank, edited by D.L. King. It was published under the name Anna Black, which I no longer use as an author. This story is a slightly expanded version of the one published in Spank. In Victorian England, a beautiful young woman who is accused and then later acquitted for the murder of her wealthy, older husband, continues to be hounded by the handsome police inspector who has convinced himself that she has escaped justice. He intends on seeing that she is duly "punished" for her crime. Note - This story is from my anthology Velvet: Erotic Stories of Domination and Submission. You can buy this single story for $.99 or purchase it along with three other stories for $2.99. This is a 5,559 word story. This book contains sexual scenarios which some readers might find objectionable, including vigorous Victorian spanking and female submission.
