Not illustrated. 1812 Excerpt: ...in the procession of the monks to the cathedral; and on the following Thursday kept Maunday, according to the practice of the church, washing the feet of the poor, and bestowing alms and blessings. From Peterborough he proceeded slowly, exercising his pastoral functions by the way, and halted at Stoby, where he resided till Michaelmas, preaching in the churches of the adjacent parishes, interposing to reconcile the variance of neighbours, relieving the necessitous, and performing many other exemplary acts of piety and benevolence. He then went forward to Caywood castle, one of the residences of the archbishop of York, distant from the city about twelve miles. A great conflux of people, drawn together by curiosity, waited to see him arrive; among whom were the clergy of the diocese, who welcomed him with the reverence due to his pontifical dignity. The castle, having been long untenanted, required extensive repairs, which the cardinal immediately commenced; for nature and habit made him decisive and prompt in all circumstances. The Upon Palm-sunday he bore his palm, and went in procession with the monks, setting forth the divine right honourably, with such singing men as he had there of his own; and upon Maunday-Thursday he made his maunday there in our Ladys Chapel, having fifty-nine poor men, whose feet he washed and kissed; and, after he had wiped them, he gave every of the said poor men twelve pence in money, three ells of good canvas to make them shirts, a pair of new shoes, a cast of red herrings, and three white herrings, and one of them had two shillings.--Wordsworths Cavendish, page 485. 1 This number denoted that he was then fifty-nine years old. short period of his residence in this antient mansion was, perhaps, the happiest of his...
